A WORD ON STREET CLEANING.

It is a most commendable thing to sweep the Main street pavement with a stream of water from a hydrant, but there are times more favorable for doing it than Monday evening—the second biggest night of the week in Barre as it is one of the two nights when the stores are open. Anyone who last evening witnessed the men, women and children doing the hop skip and jump to escape the powerful stream of water might have considered it a ludicrous matter until he, too, was compelled to do the side step to prevent being splattered with mud and soaked with water. There was a well-founded dissatisfaction among the merchants along the street last evening for the sidewalks in front of their places of business were covered with mud thrown from the street by the stream of water, and the mud was tracked into the stores by the feet of the shoppers. Altogether it was a most unfortunate situation. No time is more suited for street sweeping than the early morning, and the street department would do well to go back to the old schedule of Sunday morning baths.

COMPETING FOR CONVENTIONS.

The Rutland News complains because its city is not competing with Burlington in the matter of conventions, and with more or less of reason. Rutland, probably the second largest city in the state, is well equipped with hotel accommodations, fully as good as Burlington, and the hotels do not charge excessively. So far as the west side of the state is concerned Rutland has good railroad accommodations. Those accommodations, however, are not satisfactory to the eastern side of the state, and until such time as a cross state railroad is constructed, the Marble City may not hope to compete with Burlington in securing fraternal, political and other conventions of state magnitude. As the railroads are now located, Burlington is vastly better situated to accommodate delegates and visitors from the whole eastern section of the state. When the railroad over through the mountain is completed then Rutland will be on competing terms with Burlington.

With the standing committees of the House of Representatives appointed the real work of the session in that branch of the legislature may be considered as begun. Speaker Merrifield has had a difficult task in selecting the men best fitted for their positions although a fair amount of seasoned material was at his disposal for the heads of the more important committees. These veterans he has placed in positions where their experience will count for the most. In his single appointment of Representative Pape, Barre city has no reason to complain as the general committee is one of the few upon whom devolves a great amount of work. As its chairman Mr. Pape will have plenty of work on hand and will have no other committee work to distract him.

After considerable warning up, the Vermont legislature has finally been given the word "Go," which means work. May none of the crowd be distanced!

The Hub City of New England may settle back once more, after having won the championship in the greatest base ball war ever waged.

CURRENT COMMENT.

What the Press of the State and Country is Talking About.

It is all very well to pretend interest in the Presidential contest, but that will not be decided until November. The real struggle of the day is in the American League, and the poignant anxiety in the public mind is how that contest will be ended.—Cleveland Leader.

The Actors and Rockefellers are at war in New York. Here is a fight that the public will doubtless be inclined to view with complacency. Indeed, it is probable that a majority of the people of this country would be willing to pay good prices for reserved seats.—Chicago Record Herald.

"Public notice" required by law should mean the publication of notice in the newspapers. We have outgrown the primitive notion of taping up a notice on the town-house door. The public is too busy to go around there every day to see if anybody wants for anything.—St. Albans Messenger.

The souls work you know about and can find out about—elsewhere. This is a kind of ethnological letter and I dipped somewhat in men and the things they do. First, the Lilywhite at home. He's much like other men and takes his evening drink when he thinks he needs it. He doesn't require a bar because he keeps one in his trunk and sends to Woodsville when the inverted Lily fails to shower Dew. A pleasant cop in an empty cop showed me his drunkbook. Business light—very. Apparently the Jug does not always produce a jug. "Yes sir," said the cop, "the law works well. Not half the drunks as when four or five dives, a dozen kitchen bar rooms and fifty pocket peddlers were doing business. Yes, there's lots of drinking yet, but no open violations and practically no drunks." Conclusion No. 1: the Lilywhite knows what he wants.—H. L. Hindley in Brattleboro Reformer.

Governor McMillough's suggestion in his retiring message that the vote for license or no-license be taken only once in three or five years fails to find much if any support among the newspapers of the state, and it is reasonably safe to prophesy that the Legislature will not adopt it. The annual consideration of the license question is undoubtedly one of the strong points of the present license law. It has a tendency to make all who are interested in having the open saloon more careful as to the enforcement of the law, and all who are opposed to the open saloon more active also in their fight against violations of the law. The annual vote gives the people of a place an opportunity to administer severe reproof either to the saloon keepers or to the officials whose duty it is to enforce the law. So long as Vermont has a license law, it is to be hoped that the provision for an annual local option vote will be maintained.—Montpelier Journal.

Yesterday Afternoon's Session.

While the House sat around yesterday afternoon waiting for some one to move to adjourn, the Senate made considerable of a bluff at doing business, five bills being introduced, three of them by Senator Buxton of Rutland, each of considerable importance. Senator Buxton's bills were, (1) to tax non-resident deer hunters $10, licenses to be procured from fish and game commissioners, only one buck to be killed, penalty for violation of its provisions not less than $25 nor more than $100; (2) to repeal the noxious animal bounty which has nullified the state treasury; (3) providing for plurality election of representatives.

Another important bill is that providing for the office of attorney general, introduced by Senator Slack of St. Johnsbury, formerly an attorney in Barre with Frank J. Martin. The bill provides an attorney general to be appointed by the governor at a salary of $2,500 and expenses; is to represent the state in all causes in which it is represented; to supervise criminal prosecutions and advise state's attorneys; attend sessions of legislature and assist in preparation of measures; is to advise state officers when necessary; is to report at each session of legislature; is to take no fee for services in any prosecution; existing statutes relating to assignment of counsel to assist state's attorneys are to be repealed.

Senator Slack says he is prepared to back up his bill with a good stiff fight.

Senator Carpenter of Rutland wants to prevent the felling of trees in rivers or floating trees in rivers without the limbs being cut off, providing fine of $5 for each offense.

THE VAUGHAN STORE

FACTS ABOUT FURS

At the Corner Store!

To begin with, we have an excellent assortment to select from. About every Fur that grows is represented here. We have spent a good deal of time cutting over manufacturers' lines to get good ones and, no matter how cheap the Fur is, it has to be the best there is to be had for the money; it represents or it doesn't find a place in the "Little Old Store on the Corner."

We find people every day who hardly realize there is such a stock of fine Furs here until we get to showing them. This fact we don't relish. We want the public to know that we have Furs and many of them—Furs suited to every kind of a pocket book.

If you want fine Furs, come to the Corner Store. If you want inexpensive Furs, come to the Corner Store. If you want to buy Furs in New York or Boston, we will direct you to some of the finest Fur stores in America.

Keep first in your memory the facts we have no old goods, no leftovers. Everything is new, new, new and prices just right.
